

Hello! My album entitled
I'll Walk Towards You

is going to be released on Friday, September 4th, 2026.
These songs make me smile about things from another time.
I hope you enjoy listening to it as much as I enjoyed making it.
This album is an artefact of love!

Last Apollo's "Home" opens with its narrator imploring time to stop while a solo piano motif drives us forward anyway. A sharp clarity in retrospect provides the track with lullabye-esque sweetness which quickly expands and transmutes into a darker musical landscape.

This farewell is not lighthearted, and its lyrical charm ("Goodbye Baby Blue") gets repeatedly emulsified by swells of musical pain. The track is defined by a desperate wish to stop time, which passes still: growing more insistent with each attempt to quell its effect.

In moments coy, in moments blasting, "Home" unfolds like a mission statement. Its almost forensic unpicking of grief reflects Last Apollo's promise to collect the remains of heartbreak and tenderly lie them out in the sun.

lay down yer head by mine and close yer eyes let me hold ~~fast~~ still for one lost night
You were always going home

Home

Lay down your head by mine
And close your eyes
Let time stand still for one last night

Let flowers grow
Don't let them know you'll cut their Stems to fill a vase for me

Lay down your head by mine
And close your eyes
Let time stand still for one last night

You were always going home
We were always going home

Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue
Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue

And soon the moon will shatter into slivers
But pay no mind I'll paint each last piece back (you don't need to)
And soon the leaves will start to lose their colour
But I will tie each one back up with string (you don't need to)

So lay your head by mine
And close your eyes
Let time stand still for one last night

You were always going home
We were always going home

Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue
Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue
Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue
Goodbye baby goodbye baby blue
